Cuesta College Hosts High School Automotive Competition

Cuesta College welcomed area high school students on campus last week for the 6th annual High School Automotive Competition.

Students from Paso Robles High School, Morro Bay High School, San Luis Obispo High School and Arroyo Grande High School traveled to compete at the four-part competition hosted by Cuesta College. Participating automotive students were asked to compete in a hands-on segment, written test, parts identification segment and resume competition.

“Having these competitions are important because it gives students a real-world taste of being in the workplace,” said Greg Boswell, an automotive teacher for Paso Robles High School.

Students participating in the event were able to hone their skills in a competitive setting, using Cuesta College’s tools and equipment. Prizes donated from companies throughout the county were awarded to the top winners.

“I like the competition because it is hands-on and very educational. It is testing my abilities,” said Jonathon Jacobson, a student from Arroyo Grande High School. “I love it here at Cuesta. There is plenty to do here and it all seems like fun to me.”
